His insights provide audiences a keen understanding both of how changes in federal and state policy will remake the health care landscape, and how the struggle over those policies is shaped by the parties' larger political competition. From coverage and cost, to risk sharing and regulation, Brownstein will provide a panoramic picture of how the Donald Trump era is likely to change the equation for patients, physicians, hospitals, insurers and all other key institutions in the health care industry.

FRIDAY, JULY 21, General Session on Value-Based Payment Models, continued

Health plans can take advantage of innovative strategies across the care continuum and its effect on all pharmacy partners. With a value-based plan design and shifting payment models, health plans must clearly understand the correlation with pharmacy and clinical outcomes.

What does all this mean for the future of pharmacy in a value-based design world? This session will address the pros and cons of several emerging issues.

- Addressing health plans quality measures and how pharmacy vendor(s) have the capacity to offer and support value-based strategies.
- Implementing pay-for-performance models in the pharmacy network based upon pharmacy performance level metrics.
- Incorporating pharmaceutical management into a broader value-based benefit strategy.
- Implementing a value-based approach to managing pharmaceuticals based upon costs and outcomes

We will examine the issues from the perspectives of the health plan, the provider, pharmacists and the impact on the patient in a value-based design world.

In the passage of state legislation which created the Healthy Michigan Act (Medicaid expansion), the legislature included language requiring the State to craft a path towards a managed care LTSS program.

The discussion will include high level overviews of how managed care is being asked to manage the Medicare/Medicaid dual eligible, Long Term Care eligible, and behavioral health Medicaid populations in Michigan and throughout the nation.

General Session: The Adverse Childhood Experiences Project: Where is Michigan Now?

SPEAKERS: Rick Murdock, Recently retired Executive Director of MAHP; President, RB Murdock Consulting and Michigan ACE Initiative Grant Coordinator, MAHP Foundation, Lansing, MI

Rick will be joined by several participants from the Traverse City Region who took part in the first Michigan ACE Initiative, Master Training program: Alison Arnold, Betsy Hardy and Mary Grumman.

At the 2016 MAHP Conference, two sessions marked the start of MAHP involvement in creating an initiative regarding Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACE) in Michigan. First was the keynote presentation by Doctor Robert Anda, Co-Principal Investigator and Co-Founder, Adverse Childhood Experiences Study. Dr. Anda held the audience spellbound for 90 minutes as he highlighted the origin and implications of the seminal research that he conducted while at the Centers for Disease Control (CDC). This research studied over 17,000 individuals at the Kaiser Permanente Health Plan in San Diego and the impact of various adverse childhood experiences in the context of their current health status. This study set in motion hundreds of additional research and related program initiatives that continue to this day. With major neurological studies that affirm the study's results, it is now clear that addressing Adverse Childhood Experiences may be the most important public health initiative to be conducted.

The second session, later in the 2016 MAHP conference, was the Michigan "premiere" of the film, Resilience – a one-hour documentary on the origin of the ACE study, its impact and how communities are positively reacting. This documentary was released earlier in 2016 at the Sundance Film Festival and was produced by James Redford.

In December of 2016, MAHP Foundation was awarded a special grant by the Michigan Health Endowment Fund to develop a two-year program that would advance the ACE Initiative in Michigan. This session will highlight the grant's overall objectives: Awareness, Training, Research, and Communication and the status of various initiatives underway. Importantly, the session will discuss how this initiative relates to health plans, and will outline opportunities for involvement by them and related organizations.
